DOWNTOWN LOS ANGELES SUMMARY

23.4%	TOTAL SALES VOLUME was UP 23.4% QOQ , due in large to strong home buyer demand post-pandemic.
0.0%	The AVERAGE PPSF REMAINED FLAT in Q1 2021. However, if demand keeps pace there could be a potential uptick in future pricing.
-5.1%	The AVERAGE SALE PRICE was DOWN 5.1% QOQ to $740K, less than the 2018 through 2020 reported averages.
6.8%	There was a strong uptick in the AVERAGE PPSF for the $1M to $5M price segment reporting $685 PPSF, an INCREASE OF 6.8%.

Compass Development Marketing Group's New Development Market Insights report provides an in-depth look at Los Angeles' downtown neighborhood. Published quarterly and highlighting the city's vast condo market, we pull information from a combination of public and proprietary databases that access the most up-to-date closing information for new development properties and resales.

Though real estate sales in Los Angeles' downtown witnessed some setbacks in 2020 with buyers hesitant to invest in urban cores, low interest rates and the desire for more spacious residences heated up the DTLA market. Fueled by the arrival of vaccinations, the start of 2021 saw a release of pent-up demand for dining, travel, and leisure. This demand along with low-interest rates created a boom in the residential market which has begun to spill over into the condo sector. There was an increase in the number of real estate closings QoQ of more than 23% in Q1 2021.

With buyer demand increasing in the condo market, the activity could help elevate pricing if demand keeps pace. Until then buyers are taking advantage of softer pricing with Q1-2021 overall PPSF values for condos still down YoY (- 14.6%). This pricing has helped generate interest for buyers looking for opportunities to upgrade as new developments offer an 'estate alternative' for buyers who would otherwise style themselves in a single-family home. The DTLA luxury market showed momentum as the average sales price increased YoY by 6.1% for condos in the $1 to $5M range.

While the broader LA market has shown clear signs of improvement, DTLA has been slower to recover from the changes brought on by COVID-19. Over the next few quarters as life returns to a bit of normalcy and with the vaccine roll-outs, expect LA's once vibrant downtown scene to boom once again.
